This is a story about my father, a tailor who emigrated from Sicily and settled in California. The book is the story of his life before and after he was diagnosed with Alzheimer. Perhaps this is also a story about me. In 1999 I decided to move from Seattle to the Bay Area so I could help assist with his care. During the car trip, memories of my father started to emerge vividly, memories that became strange conversations, where I thought of hearing his voice. Then, near the end of the trip, these insane conversations became almost hallucinations. Once I arrived in California and seeing the state my father was in, made those conversations and hallucinations disappear, to replace them with a nightmare of despair and pain. But then, when my family and I became desperate, something unexpected happened, something strange and beautiful that my scientific training cannot (or wish to) explain.
